

SATELLITE NAVIGATION EQUIPMENT

Don't lose your satellite navigation equipment to car thieves.

With satellite navigation equipment becoming more popular with motorists, it is also becoming more popular with criminals.

Where it's portable keep it safe by taking it, together with the support cradle and suction pads, with you when you leave the car.

And remember to wipe away any suction pad marks left on the windscreen or dashboard as thieves will look out for these.

Don't leave the equipment in the glove compartment – thieves will usually check there first.

You can also help by following these tips:

- Mark your satellite navigation equipment system with your postcode and house number or your vehicle registration number or another unique number, using special security markers. Burglary Packs are available free of charge at the States of Jersey Police Enquiry Desk, and contain stickers and ultra violet pens. The packs also have stickers to display in the front and back windows of your home to show that you have marked your belongings.
- Making a note of the make, model and serial number of the equipment and keeping the note somewhere safe – not in the car. Consider recording this information on one of the commercially available asset registers such as “Immobilise” which can be found on the internet at <http://www.immobilise.com/>.
- Don't leave anything on view in your car. Thieves are opportunists and it only takes them moments to break into your car.
- Lock all doors and windows, not forgetting the sunroof, when leaving your car.
- Never leave the keys in the ignition when the car is unattended, even while you are paying for petrol.
